Proposal to the Senate Educational Policy Committee

PROPOSAL TITLE: Establish a new Graduate Concentration in Business and Public Policy.

SPONSOR: Louis K.C. Chan, Professor of Finance and Department Chair and Hoeft Professor of Business; 333-6391; l-chan2@illinois.edu

COLLEGE CONTACTS:

BRIEF DESCRIPTION: Today's business leaders must make strategic decisions in an extremely complex world. In addition to navigating the rapidly changing market forces in their industry, companies operate in an environment that is strongly influenced by regulatory and public policy considerations. Furthermore, our public sector leaders must also understand how market forces can help or hinder alternative solutions to society’s most pressing problems. The business and public policy graduate concentration is designed to provide graduate business students a framework for evaluating the impact of public policy on firms and the markets in which they operate.

JUSTIFICATION: The College of Business believes it is crucial that future business leaders have a broad and deep understanding of the ways that their individual markets are embedded in a larger economy where the government is an important player. This initiative is supportive of at least three areas in the Campus Strategic Plan: economic development, energy and environment, and health and wellness.

This concentration uses applied economics and other analytical tools to analyze and understand public policy, and presumes knowledge of economics as taught in core courses of the various master’s programs of the College of Business. Traditional semester courses have been split into half-courses (2 hours) to allow for more flexibility for students to choose particular areas of interest. Students choose six half-courses for 12 hours to complete the concentration.

The University of Illinois does not offer a Master’s Degree in Business and Public Policy, nor do we believe one is desirable at this time. Rather, the goal of offering this concentration is to provide students with an additional set of tools and skills that will allow them to operate more effectively in a market economy that has a significant public sector. The concentration is open to all master’s programs (Master of Accountancy Science, Master of Science in Accountancy, Master of Science in Finance, Master of Science in Business Administration, Master of Science in Technology Management, and Master of Science in Business Administration (International Management) in the College of Business but required of none.

BUDGETARY AND STAFF IMPLICATIONS:

a. Additional staff and dollars needed – None. The concentration will be taught by reallocation of existing faculty and the initial allocation of new faculty. All nine half-courses listed in the proposal have been taught as special topics courses (listed as FIN 580 or FIN 490) in either Fall 2013 or Spring 2014.

The half-courses FIN 571 Retirement Policy and FIN 572 Health Care Policy are created by partitioning the historical course FIN 434 (Employment Benefits). FIN 434 will continue to be offered for undergraduates. The half-courses FIN 576 Domestic Environmental Policy and FIN 577 International Environmental Policy are created by partitioning the current FIN 490 (special topics designation, course entitled Economics of Environmental Policy). FIN 570, Business and Public Policy, a semester course, is replaced by FIN 578, Government in a Market Economy (half-course) and FIN 574, Business Tax Policy (half-course). Three new half-courses are being taught with newly hired faculty: FIN 573, Competition Policy, FIN 575, Individual Tax Policy, and FIN 536, Government Insurance Programs. All half-courses listed in the proposal have requested permanent status. Numbers have been assigned for 571, 572, 573, 575, and 578. The remaining half-courses are still pending in the Provost’s office.

The Department of Finance will control admission to the concentration.

b. Internal reallocations (e.g., change in class size, teaching loads, student-faculty ratio, etc.) – None. In the courses currently offered, we have the capacity to expand enrollments to accommodate additional students from additional programs. If the courses are over-subscribed the instructors will prioritize business students ahead of other campus units. The Department of Finance will control admission and acceptance, and completion of the concentration. The Department of Finance will control the course offerings and negotiate potential expansion with additional programs to offer the concentration.

c. Effect on course enrollment in other units and explanations of discussions with representatives of those departments. The availability of the concentration is expected to help accommodate an increased enrollment in the 5-year BS/MAS program offered by the Department of Accountancy. This increase is generated by new requirements to take the Certified Public Accountant exam that are most easily satisfied by taking a Master’s degree. The Department of Accountancy has specifically requested this graduate concentration as a way of enhancing their program.

d. Impact on the University Library - None

e. Impact on computer use, laboratory use, equipment, etc. - None

DESIRED EFFECTIVE DATE: Spring 2014

STATEMENT FOR PROGRAMS OF STUDY CATALOG: Today’s business leaders must make strategic decisions in an extremely complex world. In addition to navigating the rapidly changing market forces in their industry, companies operate in an environment that is strongly influenced by regulatory and public policy considerations. Furthermore, our public sector leaders must also understand how market forces can help or hinder alternative solutions to society’s most pressing problems. The business and public policy graduate concentration is designed to provide graduate business students a framework for evaluating the impact of public policy on firms and the markets in which they operate.

Candidates will apply to the Department of Finance for admission into the concentration. Students wishing to be admitted to the concentration should consult with their program advisor before applying. Candidates for the concentration are required to complete 12 hours of the following initial 2-hour course offerings. Additional courses may be available in the future.

FIN 571 (Retirement Policy) (2 hours)
FIN 572 (Health Care Policy) (2 hours)
FIN 573 (Government Insurance Programs) (2 hours)
