October 14, 2019

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS URBANA-CHAMPAIGN SENATE
COMMITEE ON UNIVERSITY STATUTES AND SENATE PROCEDURES
(Final; Action)

SP.17.12 Proposed Revisions to the Statutes, Article II, Section 3 – Faculty Role in Governance and Article X, Section 2 – Academic Freedom

BACKGROUND

The proposed revisions to the Statutes, Article II, Section 3 and Article X, Section 2, are the latest step in a process initiated in 2010 to revise the academic freedom provisions in response to a recommendation by the American Association of University Professors to ensure that institutional policy documents incorporate language that would protect faculty members when speaking on matters of administration and governance. Attempts to provide these protections were approved by our Senate in 2010 (and subsequently by the other Senates) and again in 2014 (also approved by the other Senates), but those efforts were halted via administrative review before they could reach the Board of Trustees. The latest of these efforts, as ST-72, thus had no clear statutory path to follow.

In February 2017, the University Senates Conference (USC) and the University President agreed to revisit previous attempts to revise the Statutes, Article X, Section 2, to better address issues of administrative speech. A February 1, 2017 letter of transmittal from Kathy Novak, then chair of USC, noted that “given the time since this amendment was last approved by the university senates and the USC, new questions and concerns may have arisen.” The transmittal letter noted that ST-72 had stalled in its path to the Board of Trustees and Novak clarified that “In our discussions, the USC agreed that we would like to return this to the Urbana Senate where it originated, specifically to the University Statutes and Senate Procedures Committee (USSP), in consultation with the Urbana Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure (CAFT). This would allow the statute to be reexamined and potentially refined, to then be returned to the senates for renewed action.” The President concurred.

Beginning in July 2017, the Senate Committee on University Statutes and Senate Procedures (SP) and the Senate Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure (AF) met repeatedly with the Executive Vice President and University Counsel to address Counsel’s concerns with previous attempts in 2010 (SP.10.11) and 2014 (ST-72/SP.15.07) to revise the academic freedom portion of the Statutes. Counsel expressed repeatedly that they were only comfortable with a minimal set of changes to this portion of the Statutes, though they did consider our committees’ concerns. Subsequent meetings led to language provided by Counsel that they would advise the President to send to the Board. This language, first provided in August 2018, led to additional discussions, and the eventual release of acceptable language to SP and AF in December 2018. Throughout Spring 2019, SP and AF lightly modified this language, and returned to discuss potential changes with Counsel in April 2019. Counsel rejected most of these changes, but all parties agreed to move forward with the proposed revisions below.
The proposed changes accepted by Counsel would modify two portions of the Statutes. First, a sentence would be added to Article II, Section 3 (Faculty Role in Governance), specifying that faculty members are “encouraged to consider, review, analyze, critique, discuss, address, and debate academic policy and governance.” Second, Article X, Section 2 would be lightly revised, adding an additional sentence: “Academic Freedom includes the right to discuss and present scholarly opinions and conclusions both in and outside the classroom.” Additionally, a few phrasing issues have been addressed, and the new Statutes language emphasizing “system”/“university” has been employed.

Importantly, the rights and protections of academic freedom have been extended beyond tenure-track faculty to all academic staff, including specialized faculty, non-tenure-track faculty, and academic professionals, by replacing the phrasing “faculty member” with “academic staff,” which is defined in the Statutes, Article IX, Sections 4 and 11.

SP and AF also attempted to include additional phrasing in Article II, Section 3 protecting “actions as individuals or as members of agencies of institutional governance.” Counsel did not accept this additional phrasing. Further, the two committees proposed that a reference to Article II, Section 3b be included directly under the academic freedom protections in Article X, Section 2a. Counsel did not accept this addition. The committees also proposed adding a full sentence to Article X, Section 2b: “When a member of the academic staff is speaking on matters of public interest or concern, it is presumed that the member is doing so on behalf of oneself and not the institution.” The committees and Counsel discussed variations on this concept and agreed to not include it.

The changes in the current proposal to the Senate have been agreed to by SP, AF, the Vice President, and University Counsel, but they do not accomplish one important part of what has been previously passed by our Senate. As can be seen in the appendices, in December 2010, our Senate approved a more substantive change to Article X, Section 2 as SP.10.11, which was passed by the other Senates in 2011 and 2012. That language was transmitted to the President in 2013, but was not then forwarded to the Board of Trustees. USC later approved revised language and forwarded it to the Senates as ST-72, in 2014. A version of that was passed by our Senate in November 2014, as SP.15.07, and it is also included in the appendices. That version passed the other Senates in 2015 and was transmitted to the President in 2015, when it again was not forwarded to the Board. This sequence contravenes the amendment processes as outlined in Article XIII, Section 8 of the Statutes, which requires the President to transmit potential revisions to the Board for their approval or disapproval. Please review these appendices carefully to observe the differences between previous versions approved by our Senate and this set of proposed revisions.

RECOMMENDATION
The Senate Committee on University Statutes and Senate Procedures recommends approval of the following revisions to the Statutes, Article II, Section 3 and Article X, Section 2.

Text to be added is underscored and text to be deleted is struck through.
ARTICLE II. LEGISLATIVE ORGANIZATION

Section 3. Faculty Role in Governance

b. As the responsible body in the teaching, research, and scholarly activities of the University of Illinois System, the faculty has inherent interests and rights in academic policy and governance. As such, faculty members are encouraged to consider, review, analyze, critique, discuss, address, and debate academic policy and governance.

c. Each college or other academic unit shall be governed in its internal administration by its faculty, as defined in Section 3a (1) above. Governance of each academic unit shall be based on unit bylaws established and amended by the faculty of that unit. The bylaws shall provide for the administrative organization and procedure of the unit, including the composition and tenure of executive or advisory committees. Except that they may not conflict with these Statutes, or other specific actions of the Board of Trustees, or with the bylaws of a unit which encompasses it, the details of the bylaws are left to the faculty of the unit.

ARTICLE X. ACADEMIC FREEDOM AND TENURE

Section 2. Academic Freedom

a. It is the policy of the University of Illinois System to maintain and encourage full freedom within the law of inquiry, discourse, teaching, research, and publication and to protect any and all members of the academic staff against influences, from within or without the University of Illinois System, which would restrict the member’s exercise of these freedoms in the member’s area of scholarly interest. Academic Freedom includes the right to discuss and present scholarly opinions and conclusions both in and outside the classroom. The right to the protection of the University of Illinois System shall not, however, include any right to the services of the University Counsel or the Counsel’s assistants in any governmental or judicial proceedings in which the academic freedom of the staff member may be in issue.

b. As a citizen, a faculty member of the academic staff may exercise the same freedoms as other citizens without institutional censorship, or discipline, or restraint. A faculty member of the academic staff should be mindful, however, that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University system and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University system by the individual’s conduct and utterances.

c. If, in the president’s judgment, a faculty member of the academic staff exercises freedom of expression as a citizen and fails to heed the admonitions of Article X, Section 2b, the president may publicly disassociate the Board of Trustees and the University of Illinois System from, and express their disapproval of, such objectionable expressions.
d. A staff member of the academic staff who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom, which it is the policy of the University of Illinois System to maintain and encourage, shall be entitled to a hearing on written request before the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure of the appropriate campus university senate. Such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with established rules of procedure. The committee shall make findings of facts and recommendations to the president and, at its discretion, may make an appropriate report to the senate. The several committees may from time to time establish their own rules of procedure.

UNIVERSITY STATUTES AND SENATE PROCEDURES
Shawn Gilmore, Chair
H. George Friedman
Matthew Goodman
Michael Grossman
Samantha Lenoch
William Maher
Jeffrey Stein
Kelli Trei
Brent West
Jessica Mette, Ex officio
Sharon Reynolds, Ex officio
Jenny Roether, Ex officio
SP.10.11
Revisions to the Statutes, Article X, Section 2 – Academic Freedom

BACKGROUND
The principles of academic freedom are intended to prevent the disciplining of a member of the academic staff whose teaching, research, or publications might be controversial or unpopular. Although these freedoms are core values in universities, they enjoy little formal legal protection. In the United States, academic freedom is largely protected through University policies. At the University of Illinois, Article X, Section 2 of the University Statutes both defines and secures academic freedom.

According to a recent report prepared by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), several recent decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court and lower courts have raised questions about the limits of academic freedom for faculty and academic staff at public universities.¹ In these cases, the courts have limited the rights of public employees who criticize their employers. In Garcetti v. Ceballos, the Supreme Court allowed the Los Angeles district attorney’s office to discipline an assistant district attorney who had publicly criticized the way the office was being run. The Supreme Court stated, in relevant part, that when public employees speak “pursuant to their official duties, the employees are not speaking as citizens for First Amendment purposes, and the Constitution does not insulate their communications from employer discipline.”

In Garcetti, the Supreme Court did not address the question of faculty speech in public universities and colleges, and it explicitly recognized that academic freedom could pose a separate set of questions. Nevertheless, lower federal courts have applied the Garcetti rule to faculty at public universities and upheld discipline of faculty members. For example, Juan Hong, a tenured professor of civil engineering at the University of California, Irvine criticized his college’s hiring and promotion practices as violating university governance standards. He later sued when he was denied a merit raise, allegedly based on his statements. The trial court ruled that his statements were made in the course of his “official duties.” The court explained: “[A] faculty member’s official duties are not limited to classroom instruction and professional research. [His] professional responsibilities . . . a wide range of academic, administrative, and personnel functions in accordance with UCI’s self governance principle.” The court also held that the university “is entitled to unfettered discretion when it restricts statements an employee makes on the job and according to his professional responsibilities.” The trial court’s decision is currently being appealed in the Ninth Circuit federal appeals court.

The trial court’s decision in Hong — and other similar judicial decisions around the country — raises serious concerns about the scope of academic freedom at public universities. In particular, these decisions seem to limit the right of faculty who criticize the administration in the course of performing their duties of institutional governance. Thus, the AAUP recommends that academic institutions clarify their policies to include faculty governance within the scope of academic freedom.

Because this judicial trend narrows the freedom of academics to participate in governance of their institutions and civic discourse in general, the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure has proposed that the language of Article X, Section 2 of the University Statutes be strengthened to more specifically define the scope of academic freedom and to affirm the freedom of the University of Illinois’ academic staff to teach, conduct research, and participate in faculty governance and civic discourse without interference. The proposed changes to Section 2 also clarify that academic freedom is a right of all university staff who are engaged in teaching and research, including those who are not U.S. citizens.

RECOMMENDATION
The Senate Committee on University Statutes and Senate Procedures recommends approval of the following revisions to the Statutes. Text to be added is underscored and text to be deleted is indicated in [square brackets].

PROPOSED REVISIONS TO THE STATUTES, ARTICLE X, SECTION 2

Section 2. Academic Freedom

1 a. Academic freedom is the freedom to teach, both in and outside the classroom, to conduct research and to publish the results of those investigations, and to address any matter of institutional policy or action whether or not as a member of an agency of institutional governance. Academic staff members have the freedom to speak to any matter of social, political, economic, or other interest to the larger community, subject to the applicable academic standards of conduct.

2 [a.] b. It is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage full freedom within the law of inquiry, discourse, teaching, research, and publication and to protect any member of the academic staff against influences, from within or without the University, which would restrict the member’s exercise of these freedoms in the member’s area of scholarly interest, as well as to maintain full freedom of discourse regarding University policies and actions whether or not uttered as a member of an agency of institutional governance. The right to the protection of the University shall not, however, include any right to the services of the university counsel or the counsel’s assistants in any governmental or judicial proceedings in which the academic freedom of the staff member may be in issue.

[b.] c. As a citizen, an [faculty] academic staff member may exercise the same freedoms as other citizens without institutional censorship or discipline. International members of the academic staff shall enjoy these same freedoms. An [faculty] academic staff member should be mindful, however, that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances.

c. d. If, in the president’s judgment, an [faculty] academic staff member exercises freedom of expression as a citizen and fails to heed the admonitions of Article X, Section 2[b]c, the president may publicly disassociate the Board of Trustees and the University from and express their disapproval of such objectionable expressions.

d. e. An academic staff member who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom which it is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage shall be entitled to a hearing on written request before the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure of the appropriate campus senate. Such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with established rules of procedure. The committee shall make findings of facts and recommendations to the president and, at its discretion, may make an appropriate report to the senate. The several committees may from time to time establish their own rules of procedure.

UNIVERSITY STATUTES AND SENATE PROCEDURES
William Maher, Chair
H. George Friedman
Karen Hogenboom
Christopher Kunzweiler
Melissa Madsen
Anna-Maria Marshall
Alec Meyerholz
Ann Reisner
Kristine Campbell, Observer
Robert C. Damrau, Ex officio
Sandy Jones, Ex officio (designee)
SP.15.07  Revisions to the Statutes, Article X, Section 2 – Academic Freedom

BACKGROUND
On December 6, 2010, the Urbana-Champaign Senate voted to approve SP.10.11 authorizing changes to the University Statutes, Article X, Section 2 governing Academic Freedom. Specifically, SP.10.11 included in its definition of academic freedom activities addressing “any matter of institutional policy or action whether or not as a member of an agency of institutional governance.” In addition, SP.10.11 extended the provisions governing academic freedom to all academic staff members. Appendix A contains the text of SP.10.11.

After the Senates for the Chicago and Springfield campuses adopted these changes to the University Statutes, the University Senates Conference (USC) forwarded SP.10.11 to the President. After considering these amendments, the President and his staff raised concerns about the language. A small working group including members of USC and the President’s staff met to make revisions to address those concerns. USC approved those revisions, designated ST-72 and presented in this proposal, on March 18, 2014. In forwarding ST-72 to the three campuses, the Chair of USC stated that ST-72 offered “stronger language that better defines who is covered in Article X, Section 2 and removes ambiguity between references to academic freedom and to First Amendment rights.” Appendix A also contains the text of ST-72.

The Senate Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure (AFT) reviewed ST-72 and concluded that the proposed language clarified the objectives of the original amendments to Article X—extending academic freedom to participation in shared governance. AFT did not address the proposed changes to the coverage for academic staff.

In its review of ST-72, the Senate Committee on University Statutes and Senate Procedures (USSP) regrets that ST-72 restricts coverage to academic staff members “directly engaged in teaching and research,” a limitation that did not appear in SP.10.11 as previously adopted. In addition, USSP members found the phrasing of the paragraph 2.a of SP.10.11 preferable because it was clearer and more straightforward. Yet most members thought that the changes did not affect the meaning of academic freedom in a significant way. USSP also notes that the last sentence of paragraph 2.a of SP.10.11 has been moved to paragraph 2.c, and the last sentence of paragraph 2.c has been incorporated into paragraph 2.d; these rearrangements may somewhat clarify the text, and do not seem to change its meaning.
RECOMMENDATION
The Senate Committee on University Statutes and Senate Procedures and the Senate Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure recommend approval of the following revisions to the Statutes. Text to be added is underscored and text to be deleted is indicated by strikeout (e.g., sample text for deletion).

PROPOSED REVISIONS TO THE STATUTES, ARTICLE X, SECTION 2

Section 2. Academic Freedom

a. Academic freedom includes the freedom to teach, both in and outside the classroom, to conduct research and to publish the results of those investigations. The practice of shared governance that structures institutional decision-making depends on the right of a member of the faculty, or an academic staff member directly engaged in teaching or research, to address any matter of institutional policy or action, whether or not as a member of an agency or institutional governance, without fear of retaliation. This right is a core aspect of academic freedom.

[a.] b. It is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage full freedom within the law of inquiry, discourse, teaching, research, and publication and to protect any member of the academic staff against influences, from within or without the University, which would restrict the member’s exercise of these freedoms in the member’s area of scholarly interest, as well as to maintain full freedom of discourse regarding University policies and actions whether or not uttered as a member of an agency of institutional governance. The right to the protection of the University shall not, however, include any right to the services of the university counsel or the counsel’s assistants in any governmental or judicial proceedings in which the academic freedom of the staff member may be in issue.

[b.] c. As a citizen, a faculty member may exercise the same freedoms as other citizens without institutional censorship or discipline. Members of the faculty, and academic staff members who are directly engaged in teaching or research, have the freedoms identified in Article X, Section 2.a above and have the freedom to speak to any matter of social, political, economic, or other interest to the larger community. International members of the faculty, and academic staff shall enjoy these same freedoms. A faculty member should be mindful, however, that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person's profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances.

[c.] d. All the rights enumerated in sections X.2. a, b and c above are subject to the applicable standards of academic conduct. Further, a member of the faculty, and any academic staff member, should be mindful that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances. If, in the president’s judgment, a faculty member of the faculty or academic staff who is directly engaged in teaching or research, exercises freedom of expression as a citizen and fails to heed the admonitions of Article X, Section 2[b], the president may publicly disassociate the Board of Trustees and the University from and express their disapproval of such objectionable expressions.

[d.] e. A staff member of the faculty, or an academic staff member directly engaged in teaching or research, who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom which it is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage shall be entitled to a hearing on written request before the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure of the appropriate campus senate. Such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with established rules of procedure. The committee shall make findings of facts and recommendations to the president and, at its discretion, may make an appropriate report to the senate. The several committees may from time to time establish their own rules of procedure.

UNIVERSITY STATUTES AND SENATE PROCEDURES
William Maher, Chair
H. George Friedman
Scott Jacobs
Calvin Lear
Anna-Maria Marshall
Mark Roszkowski
Cheyenne Wu
Sandy Jones, Ex officio (designee)
Jenny Roether, Ex officio
Dedra Williams, Observer
Section 2. Academic Freedom

b. Academic freedom is the freedom to teach, both in and outside the classroom, to conduct research and to publish the results of those investigations, and to address any matter of institutional policy or action whether or not as a member of an agency of institutional governance. Academic staff members have the freedom to speak to any matter of social, political, economic, or other interest to the larger community, subject to the applicable academic standards of conduct.

a. It is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage full freedom within the law of inquiry, discourse, teaching, research, and publication and to protect any member of the academic staff against influences, from within or without the University, which would restrict the member’s exercise of these freedoms in the member’s area of scholarly interest. The right to the protection of the University shall not, however, include any right to the services of the university counsel or the counsel’s assistants in any governmental or judicial proceedings in which the academic freedom of the staff member may be in issue.

As a citizen, a faculty member may exercise the same freedoms as other citizens without institutional censorship or discipline. A faculty member should be mindful, however, that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances.

As a citizen, an academic staff member may exercise the same freedoms as other citizens without institutional censorship or discipline. International members of the academic staff shall enjoy these same freedoms. An academic staff member should be mindful, however, that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances.

As a citizen, a faculty member may exercise the same freedoms as other citizens without institutional censorship or discipline. International members of the faculty, and academic staff members who are directly engaged in teaching or research, have the freedoms identified in Article X, Section 2.a above and have the freedom to speak to any matter of social, political, economic, or other interest to the larger community. International members of the faculty, and academic staff shall enjoy these same freedoms. A faculty member should be mindful, however, that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances.
c. If, in the president’s judgment, a faculty member exercises freedom of expression as a citizen and fails to heed the admonitions of Article X, Section 2b, the president may publicly disassociate the Board of Trustees and the University from and express their disapproval of such objectionable expressions.

d. A staff member who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom which it is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage

c. If, in the president’s judgment, an academic staff member exercises freedom of expression as a citizen and fails to heed the admonitions of Article X, Section 2(b), the president may publicly disassociate the Board of Trustees and the University from and express their disapproval of such objectionable expressions.

c. All the rights enumerated in sections X.2. a, b and c above are subject to the applicable standards of academic conduct. Further, a member of the faculty, and any academic staff member, should be mindful that accuracy, forthrightness, and dignity befit association with the University and a person of learning and that the public may judge that person’s profession and the University by the individual’s conduct and utterances.

If, in the president’s judgment, a faculty member of the faculty, or academic staff who is directly engaged in teaching or research, exercises freedom of expression as a citizen and fails to heed these admonitions of Article X, Section 2(b), the president may publicly disassociate the Board of Trustees and the University from and express their disapproval of such objectionable expressions.

d. A staff member who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom which it is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage

d. An academic staff member who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom which it is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage shall be entitled to

d. A [staff] member of the faculty, or an academic staff member directly engaged in teaching or research, who believes that he or she does not enjoy the academic freedom shall be entitled to a hearing on written request before the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure of the appropriate campus senate. Such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with established rules of procedure. The committee shall make findings of facts and recommendations to the president and, at its discretion, may make an appropriate report to the senate. The several committees may from time to time establish their own rules of procedure.

a hearing on written request before the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure of the appropriate campus senate. Such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with established rules of procedure. The committee shall make findings of facts and recommendations to the president and, at its discretion, may make an appropriate report to the senate. The several committees may from time to time establish their own rules of procedure.

which it is the policy of the University to maintain and encourage shall be entitled to a hearing on written request before the Committee on Academic Freedom and Tenure of the appropriate campus senate. Such hearing shall be conducted in accordance with established rules of procedure. The committee shall make findings of facts and recommendations to the president and, at its discretion, may make an appropriate report to the senate. The several committees may from time to time establish their own rules of procedure.
Approved on 10/14/2019 as an attachment to SP.17.12 on the Senate floor

COMMENT:

The Senate of the Urbana-Champaign Campus supports the statutory changes found in SP.17.12, which are the product of years of deliberation and negotiation. We acknowledge the efforts and good will on all sides to reach this compromise.

At the same time, we would like to register our view that SP.17.12 does not yet go far enough to protect some aspects of academic freedom, which are vital to free thought, shared governance, and excellence at a major research university.

We want to see these changes in SP.17.12 go forward without delay, but also want to register our intention to propose further changes in the future. These further changes may include two textual changes on p. 3.

On lines 7-8, we believe the phrase “and institutional” should be inserted after “academic” because the range of university policies and actions on which faculty might speak goes beyond only the academic. And the phrase “nor shall they be sanctioned for engaging in any of these activities.” should be added after “academic policy and governance.”

Lines 7-8 would then read: “As such, faculty members are encouraged to consider, review, analyze, critique, discuss, address, and debate academic and institutional policy and governance, nor shall they be sanctioned for engaging in any of these activities.”

On lines 18-19, we believe the phrase “and to engage in faculty governance” should be added after “outside the classroom.”

Lines 18-19 would then read: “Academic Freedom includes the right to discuss and present scholarly opinions and conclusions both in and outside the classroom and to engage in faculty governance.”

Additional changes, of course, might also be proposed and considered at a later time. The Statutes are a living document and are always subject to revision.