Program Description and Justification

Justification for proposal change:

The Charles H. Sandage Department of Advertising is one of the oldest departments of its kind in the United States. For much of its history it existed as a two-year program. Rather than beginning the major as Freshmen, students entered the program as Juniors. Consequently, much of the current structure of the major was designed to optimally benefit those students and simplify their path to graduation. However, that two-year program orientation no longer applies.

In the early 2000's the College of Media and Department of Advertising began admitting Freshmen students to the major. The required number of hours in the Advertising major, however, was not changed. The changes requested in this application, to increase the required number of hours in the major from 24 to 36, are designed to better meet the needs of the students who now spend four rather than two years in our program. In addition, increasing the number of major hours required in Advertising brings the program more in line with the required number of hours of the other two majors in the College of Media. Currently, the BS in Journalism requires 39 hours in the major and the BS in Media and Cinema Studies requires 31.

To accomplish the increase of 12 hours (24 to 36 hours) we request a decrease in the number of elective hours that students currently take in the College of Media. Presently, students take 20-28 hours as electives in the College of Media. Of those 20-28 hours a minimum of six credits must be Advertising electives at the 300 and above level. Hence, students are in fact currently taking 30 hours in the Advertising program. Under this proposal students would take an additional six hours in the Advertising major and 8-16 hours as College of Media electives. As a result, this program revision would only impact the number of hours that students take within the College of Media and would have no impact on the hours that they take outside of the College.

Re: Charles H. Sandage Department of Advertising curriculum revision proposal

This letter is offered in support of the Department of Advertising’s proposal to change the required hours in its major – a change that potentially affects the elective course hours Advertising majors take in other departments in the College of Media, including Journalism.

While it is possible that the proposed change will reduce the number of elective hours Advertising students take in Journalism courses, proposed changes in Journalism are likely to mitigate any negative impact. Specifically, the Journalism department offers courses in the Public Relations minor administered by the Advertising department and plans to expand those offerings. The bulk of credit hours Advertising students take in Journalism is related to this minor, so the additional offerings are likely to cancel out (potential) losses elsewhere. Journalism also is lifting current restrictions on Journalism majors minoring in Public Relations, which also will result in additional credit hours.

Please do not hesitate to reach out with any questions.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Craft
Professor and Head

To: Faculty Senate

Dear Members of the Faculty Senate:

I’m aware that the Department of Advertising is revising its advertising major requirement from 24 to 36 hours within the major. I believe that the Advertising faculty’s curricular revisions serve the best interests of their majors, and, by extension, those of the College of Media.

Sincerely,

CL Cole
Professor and Head, MACS
